NOTES OVER THE CITY

Mr. W. S. Edmonds has purchased from Mr. Wade Cox a half interest in his pool hall on Main street. Mr. Edmonds has resigned his position with the International & Great Northern railroad and will take an active part in the management of the business.

The carpenters have not been able to work much this week, but with the sunshine will come the ring of the hammer building improvements in Bryan.

A week of good weather just before Christmas would mean much to Bryan merchants. Two days of sunshine would dry the roads sufficiently to bring large crowds to town every day next week.

The cotton receipts this week have been extremely light. Practically no cotton was weighed until today, and only a few bales have been bought by local buyers. The price, 14 1/4 cents for middling, is not low.

ADDITIONAL COTTON STATISTICS WANTED.

Congressman Heflin, of Alabama, introduces Joint Resolution Providing for Report on Export Cotton.

[Special to The Bryan Eagle.] Washington, Dec. 17.—Representative Heflin, of Alabama, introduced a joint resolution in the house today authorizing the director of the census bureau to collect and publish additional cotton statistics. It provides that export cotton be summarized monthly, beginning September 1, and each month thereafter.

White and Dr. Fred Johnson for the state in rebuttal. The taking of testimony closed before noon and the arguments were begun this afternoon.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN. Washington, Dec. 17.—(Copyrighted, 1910, by W. T. Foster.)—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 18th to 23d, warm wave 17th to 21st, cool wave 20th to 24th. This will be the great divide between moderate and severe weather. High temperatures will prevail as the front part of this disturbance passes and following it will come a cold wave that will affect the whole continent and cause weather of the blizzard kind in Northern sections. Southern truck farmers and gardeners should be on the alert and ready to protect their tender plants and fruits from this general cold snap, which is expected to pass eastward, crossing meridian 90 not far from December 23.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 23d, cross Pacific slope by close of 24th, great central valleys 25th to 27, Eastern sections 28th. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 23d, great central valleys 25th, Eastern sections 27th. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 26th, great central valleys 28th, Eastern sections 30th.

This disturbance will be a moderately modest affair till about the night before Christmas. I expect the storms at that time to be somewhere between the Rockies and meridian 90, and while I will not try to more closely define their locations, where they may be at that time and thence eastward, you may look out for trouble with weather freaks.

Beginning with December 27, the Eastern and Western sections of the continent will be in the grip of a long, severe period of fierce winter storms preceded by very cold weather, and after the elements have rasped animal life and human tenderness the great winter storms will be followed by rising temperatures and beautiful winter weather. Last disturbance of December will reach Pacific coast about 28th, cross Pacific slope by close of 29th, great central valleys 30th to January 1, Eastern sections 2d. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about December 28, great central valleys 30th, Eastern sections January 7. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about December 31, great central valleys January 2, Eastern sections 4th.

This disturbance will lash the Pacific coast with a furious whip, making bad weather for the old tars on the Pacific and uncomfortable for man and beast on land. It will also be remarkable as the omen of good. With and following it will come in a remarkably warm January for the country lying east of meridian 90. But the prospects for the country lying between meridian 90 and the Rockies appears cold and cheerless, except that real winter weather in that section holds out a hope for coming good crop weather.

About December 28 to 30 will be a sun spot period. In looking at the sun about noon the spots will probably be seen on the east side of and above the center of the sun. The spots will be well developed, but not large and may require the aid of opera glasses. Best method is to place a tub of water where the reflection of the sun may be seen. When the water is quiet you can look at the sun's image in the water. If it is too bright for you put a little laundry blueing in the water and then use your opera glasses.

You will find these observations interesting and instructive. Young people, with inquiring minds will find these observations beneficial in an educational way. The forecasts of the sun spots will be found in these bulletins regularly. Prof. Ricard, at the Santa Clara college observatory, near San Francisco, will announce the results as to the forecasted sun spots.

SECOND ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL DAY

Contests in Athletics and Oratory Among Second Class Schools at A. & M. College.

[Special to The Bryan Eagle.] College Station, Texas, Dec. 17.—E. J. Kyle, president of the Athletic Association of the A. & M. College of Texas, is now corresponding with the high schools and academies of the state with reference to the High School Day that is to be held at A. & M. college in April.

This High School Day was established by the A. & M. college authorities last April, at the time the first annual track meet was held on Kyle Field at the college. At that time the A. & M. College High School Association was organized, with the following executive committee: E. J. Kyle, O. F. Chastain, Dr. J. C. Blake, from A. & M. college; Prof. J. M. Carlisle, from the academies, and Prof. J. L. Head, of Temple, from the high schools.

Under the terms of the constitution the object is to "broaden and harmonize the relations of the A. & M. College of Texas with the high schools and academies of the state."

The membership for any year shall consist of the college committee on High School Day and one representative from each school participating in any of the student events of High School Day. All secondary schools of the state are invited to take part in the exercises, except that no school chartered as a college and authorized to confer degrees shall be included.

In the athletic contests on High School Day the teams from public high schools shall compete with each other, and the teams from all other schools shall compete against each other, but the executive committee will have authority to provide for a final contest between the winners of the separate meets. No contestant in any event shall be over twenty years of age.

No school shall have more than ten representatives in the athletic events. The executive committee will pay the entire expenses of the trip to the college of a certain number of high school teams, teams not to exceed six individuals, who have in a preliminary contest won first honors against at least two competing teams eligible to take part in the field events of High School Day.

There is to be an oratorical contest also, this to be on the evening of the first day of the field games. The time of delivery of each oration shall not exceed fifteen minutes. The executive committee will select three judges of thought and composition. Their judgment shall be based entirely on the manuscripts submitted, but the question of originality may be taken into consideration. On High School Day three judges on delivery will be selected. On or before April 1 each contestant in the oratorical contest shall send to the secretary of the association three unmarked typewritten copies of his oration. These will be numbered by the secretary and sent to the judges on thought and composition. The grades will not be made known until the final result is announced. No school shall have more than one representative in the oratorical contest. The contestant receiving the highest grade in the oratorical contest will be awarded a four-year directors' scholarship at A. & M. college and the contestant receiving the second highest grade will be awarded a two-year directors' scholarship. The contestant receiving the third highest grade will receive a gold medal.

There will be awards announced later for the field games, and these will be in keeping with the rules of amateur athletics.

On High School Day there will be a round-table discussion participated in by the representative of each school present. The president of A. & M. college will preside, and the program will consist of the following:

1. An address on the relations of the A. & M. College of Texas to the secondary schools of the state.
2. An address on the relations of the secondary schools to the A. & M. College of Texas.
3. Informal discussion.

There was a large attendance at this High School Day last April, when it was first held, and Prof. Kyle has information from a large number of the schools of the state that they will be in attendance. Last year the competition was free for all as between academies and high schools, and the academies for some reason had the better of it. The next meet, however, will be different, as the academies are to compete against each other and the high schools against each other, so that honors will be more evenly divided. After that it may be that high school winners and academy winners will contest against each other.
